OVERVIEW

- Refined glycerine heard heading to US before 90-day tariff pause ends
- Downstream ECH plants in China run at reduced rates
- Uncertainties amid US-China trade war disrupt global trade flows
- China said no negotiations unless US cancels unilateral tariffs

Asia's glycerine market appeared to be in a stalemate as players stayed on the sidelines amid uncertainties due to the escalating US-China trade war.

There was talk that refined glycerine shipments from southeast Asia were heading to the US before the 90-day tariff pause ends on 9 July.

Malaysian and Indonesian exports to the US, including refined glycerine, have been slapped with a tariff of 24% and 32% respectively by the Trump administration.

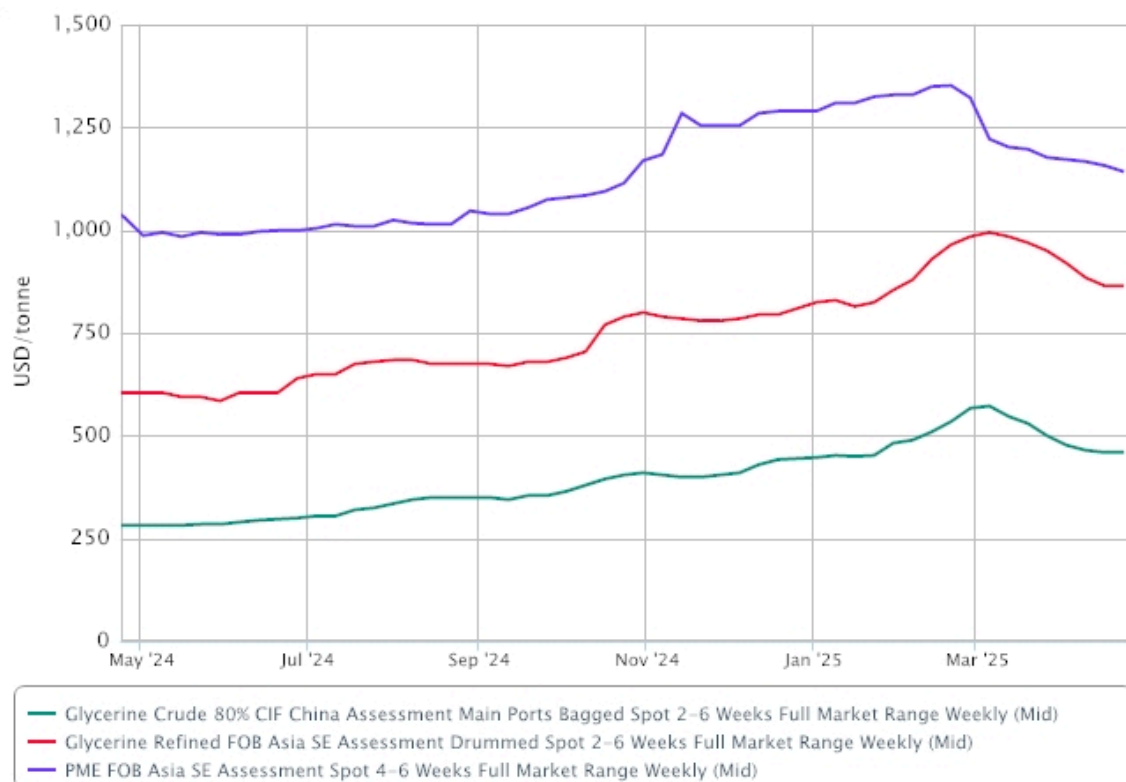

Meanwhile, downstream epichlorohydrin (ECH) plants in China were heard running at reduced rates, curtailing Chinese demand for glycerine.

Market players remain cautious, with discussions thin and spot trades largely restricted to smaller parcels given the uncertain outlook.

On Thursday, China said there were no ongoing discussions with the US on tariffs, despite recent comments by the US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent that he expects "a de-escalation" in the US-China trade war in the "very near future."

The US-led flip-flop reciprocal tariff policy has roiled global equity and commodity markets and disrupted global supply chains and trade flows.

The International Monetary Fund (IMF) cut its growth forecasts for China, India and other developing Asian economies.

Refined glycerine

Buy-sell price indications for refined glycerine remained far apart, with buyers adopting a cautious stance and holding off any forward purchases given current macroeconomic uncertainties.

Spot prices were assessed unchanged amid the tug-of-war between buyers and sellers.

Discussions or spot trades, if any, were mostly restricted to smaller parcels for buyers in Asia. Sellers also adopted a prudent stance and were reluctant to sell larger parcels due to current uncertainties.

Meanwhile, sellers with Malaysian or Indonesian cargoes-in-hand were heard exploring the option of shipping stocks to the US before the 90-day tariff pause ends on 9 July.

Crude glycerine

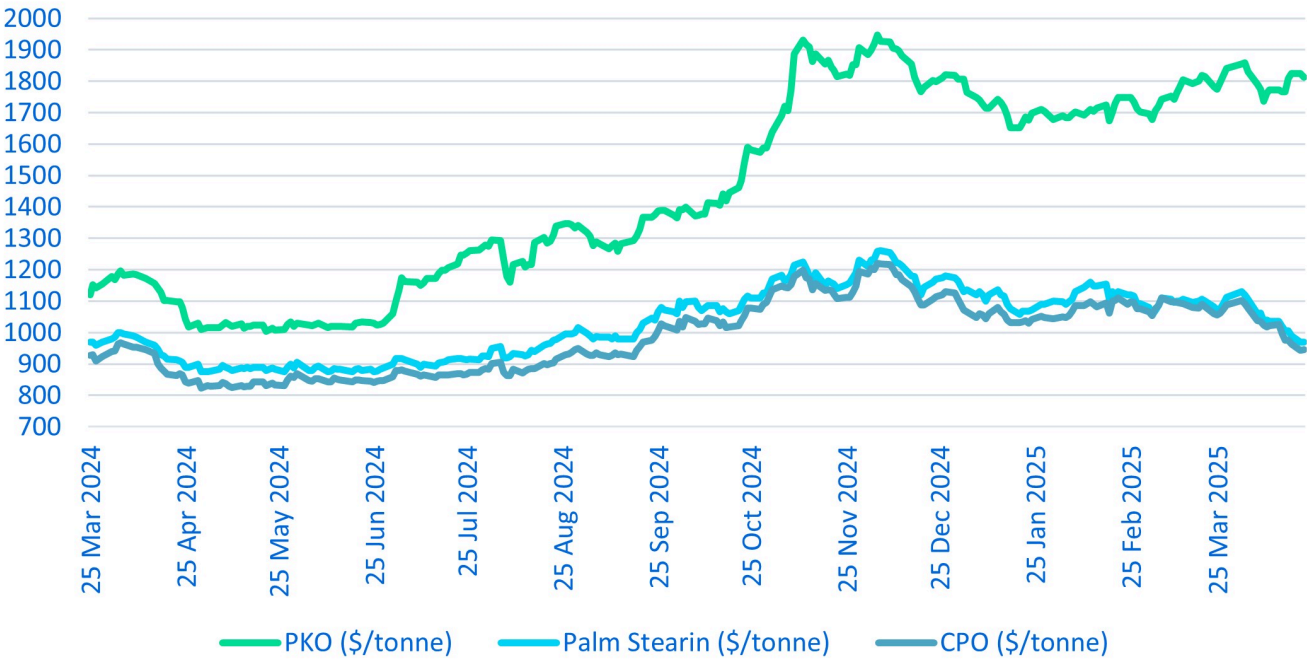

Spot prices were assessed flat on thin discussions and limited trades. The market was muted this week, with both buyers and sellers adopting a wait-and-see stance.

Although downstream ECH prices in China rose to Chinese yuan (CNY) 9,300/tonne, up 8% from late March, most glycerine feedstock-based ECH plants were heard running at reduced rates.

Chinese procurements of flexi-bagged shipments from Latin America were mostly within the $455-465/tonne CIF China range for May shipments.
